Family game

Las Vegas Royale: gambling excitement until the very last roll of the dice

Players must like to take risks, have good luck and strong nerves to play the successful dice game “Las Vegas”, which was nominated Game of the Year in 2012. Just like in the same-named gamblers’ paradise, the aim of the game is to keep your cool while gambling and heap up the most money in the dice casinos. You can bet that the new “Las Vegas Royale” tops them all. To mark the 20-year anniversary of Ravensburger’s alea brand, the game will not only be relaunched in a new, elegant design and with new features. 16 additional game boards can be placed by the casinos to offer various opportunities to cash in on even more money and make living the gambler’s life tough for the other players.

Nothing has been changed, except a few small rules of the original game version. Big bucks can be won in the casinos numbered one through six. The players roll their dice in turn, pick one of the numbers they have rolled and place all dice with this number on the casino with the corresponding number. With each number you pick, you’ll wonder: Where’s the best spot to place my dice? On which casino will the other players place theirs? And where can I snatch a neat pile of money away from an opponent? At the end of each round, the player with the most dice on a casino gets to pocket the big bucks. But beware: if two players have the same number of dice in one casino, both end up empty-handed – and the third, who looked like he was out of luck with fewer dice in the casino, is happy to stash away the cash.

Royal gambling fun with more game depth and variety

From the 16 additional game boards, up to six randomly chosen boards will be placed by the casinos. Each time a player places dice on one of these casinos, it will also activate the corresponding game board. For example with “High Five”, the first player who places five dice on a casino will get a fat 100,000 dollar bonus. There is a “Fifty-Fifty” chance for an even bigger bonus with two extra dice: before each roll of the dice, the player must say whether the next roll will be higher or lower than the current roll. The idea behind “Lucky Punch” is to guess how willing a fellow player is to take risks. Casinos can also be locked, move your dice or “knock out” intruding players. There is also an imaginary co-player who makes winning harder or you can even lose some of the beloved greenbacks if you have the fewest dice in a casino.

„Las Vegas Royale“ offers even more interaction, playing enjoyment plus game depth and brings lots of malicious glee and variety to the playing table.

To mark the 20-year anniversary of Ravensburger’s “alea”, the brand for hardcore players, the game will not only be relaunched in a new, elegant design and with new features: in addition to 50 dice, numerous playing chips and banknotes, it now also has a practical dice-rolling tray in the center of the casinos.

„Las Vegas Royale“ from Rüdiger Dorn is suitable for players nine years and up and has been available in stores since April 2019.
